The Forks.

A silver fork, by some mistake, was placed on a kitchen table, beside a steel fork. In vain it tried to edge away. It was helpless. At length the steel fork said, "Good morning, cousin."

"Cousin, indeed!" indignantly answered the silver fork. "I wonder when we became cousins. Who was your father? I can't think what made that stupid servant throw me down here in such society!"

"Well," said the steel fork, "perhaps we are not cousins, but we have the same name. I heard the girl call you 'Fork,' and that is what I am called, too. We resemble one another in form, but there is a difference in color and real quality."

"Who was your father, or grandfather?" asked the silver fork, copying after some people I know of.

"My father's name is Iron. When he united in matrimony with Miss Carbon, they took the name of Steel."

"Why, that is not proper for both to change their names," interrupted the silver fork.

"Yes, it is both proper and common with us. I don't think it is fair to make the lady change her name unless the gentleman does as much. I believe in equal rights. The Iron family is a very large one, and some of us are found everywhere among civilized people."

"Oh, I dare say your family is a very common one, and you serve common people. Ours is not so large that everybody is handling us, but we are found with the rich and refined people. Indeed, we are prized so highly that all manner of care is taken of us to protect us from thieves. Why, you could lie on this table year in and year out, and no one would steal you, for you are worthless."

At this the steel fork became indignant, and said:

"I would like to know what the world would do without us. Look around this room and see how many articles we help to form—stove, kettles, frying-pans, flat-irons, and many other useful things, too numerous to mention. Nor is the kitchen the only room we are found in; I can't think of a room in this house that is without some part of our family. We even enter certain medicines, and give strength to suffering humanity."

"Well, certainly you ought to be useful if you can't be ornamental," said the silver fork, proudly. "But," condescendingly, "perhaps you would like to know something about the Silver family, since you have been so good as to tell me about yours. I can't stop to tell you the whole history, for I expect any minute to be taken to the sink for my bath. A part of our illustrious family live under the ground; and so anxious are people to possess us, that they dig for a long time, and deprive themselves of almost everything, knowing that when they get us, we make up for all lost comforts. I have heard my father tell how we were first discovered in South America. A man was chasing a deer up a steel hill, and in order to help himself up, he caught hold of a bush that grew on the slope; as he did so, the bush came out, and at the roots he saw something shining—it was silver. Instead of taking it, he went and told his neighbor, who hastened to the spot and took it all."

"How interesting! Pray, go on. It must have been a long time ago, for no man nowadays would tell his neighbors before he had looked out for number one," said the steel fork.

"I can't tell you any more, for here comes my mistress; she can't do without me any longer. She will put me in my beautiful couch and hide me in a drawer. How much she thinks of me!"

The lady of the house came, and saying, "Here is the missing fork," took it away, but not to hide it in a drawer.

The steel fork heard the kitchen girls talking about a change that had taken place in the family. Their master had failed in business, and to meet the demands of his creditors, was going to sell his house and part of his furniture, and live on a smaller scale. His wife gladly denied herself all luxuries, desiring to share his losses, as she had shared his good fortune. The silverware was to be sold at a second-hand store.

"These steel forks were my dear mother's. I am sure they are good enough for us. They are useful, and that is all I want," said the lady.

"How happy the world might be," thought the steel fork, "if there were more people like her! She is 'true as steel.'"—Interior.

The Old New York Journalists.

There are not many of the old guards of journalism left. When I began life in 1860, Bennett, Greeley, Raymond, Bryant, Hallock, were the chiefs in the synagogue. Dana, Hurlbut, Halpine, Wilson, Hudson and the Swintons were just behind them. Connery was reporting, Reid was writing letters, Young was reporting, Marble was assisting Godwin, Bundy was reporting, and the great army of active men now the brains and virility of the press were studying their A B C's. Where be they now? Not one editor-in-chief then in power is alive today. Every one has departed. The column-rules have been turned time and again. Eulogies have been preached, leaders have blazoned their virtues and state funerals have carried what is facetiously termed their "remains" to their ultimate destination. Mr. Bennett was the only one who attained a good old age. The fact is that as no candle can last long with a wick at both ends, so no man who works day and night, 365 days and 365 nights in every year, can expect to keep pace with the ordinary chap who goes to bed at ten and gets up for work at seven. Yet who would exchange his short and active life, with its fifty-year terminus, for the existence led by many men down to an eightieth or even a ninetieth year? Not I, for one. I don't believe in "a short life and a merry one" necessarily, but I do believe in an active, pushing, driving, steam-engine kind of a gait which keeps abreast of the age and enables one to see and know and be part and parcel of all there is to appreciate. When I began to write, twenty-one years ago, Hurlbut and Swinton, Wilson and Hudson, looked venerable and decrepit, but they were not. Hudson was killed on a railroad by a train that upset his carriage. He was a pensioner to the annual tune of $10,000 on the Herald's list. He was considered a great newspaper man, but I imagine if he could be suddenly rehabilitated and put back in Connery's chair he would be impotent and nerveless. Where he spent ten dollars in 1860 the Herald spends a hundred and fifty. What would he think of electric bells, ten thousand words by cable, the pneumatic tube which drops the telegraphic sheets on the very desk of the night editor? But he is gone. So is Wilson, so far as journalism is concerned. Hurlbut I saw today. The gay and graceful courtier is merged in the gracious merchant—for that is all there is left of the old-time man about town whose wit was proverbial. Swinton doesn't improve in looks as he advances in years. The assumed oddities of his middle life have become confirmed peculiarities in his old age and his girth (physical) is something marvelous. Each of these men had a degree of talent, but none of them ever touched the plane on which stood their chiefs.—Howard, in Philadelphia Times.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

THURSDAY EVENING, FEB. 9, 1882.

LINES,

Respectfully Dedicated to the Fighting
Editor of the Vanceburg Courier.

I met a lion in my path,
'Twas on a dreary autumn night,
Who gave me the alternative
To either run or fight.

I dare not turn upon the track,
I dare not think to run away,
For fear the lion at my back
Might seize me as his prey.

So, summoning a fearless air,
Though all my soul was full of fright,
I said unto the forest-king:
I will not run, but fight.

We fought, and as the fates decreed,
I conquered in the bloody fray;
For soon the lion at my feet,
A lifeless carcass lay.

A little skunk was standing by
And noted what the lion spoke.
And when he saw the lion die,
The lion's track he took.

He used the lion's very speech,
And stretching to his utmost height,
He gave me the alternative
To either run or fight.

I saw he was prepared to fling
Vile odors from his bushy tail,
And knew those odors very soon
My nostrils would assail.

So, summoning an humble air,
Though all my soul was free from flight,
I said unto the dirty brute,
I'll run, but will not fight.

MORAL.

As years begin to cool my blood,
I'd rather all would doubt my spunk
Than for a moment undertake
To battle with a skunk.

The Virginia House of Delegates has passed the bill for the settlement of the State debt.

The Secretary of the Treasury has called for $20,000,000 of bonds, and will pay the interest upon them to the 8th day of April.

The last reports concerning smallpox at Cincinnati, are that the disease is increasing. Seventeen new cases were reported in one day.

The committee on Military Affairs, of the Legislature reported a bill to pay the expenses of the State Guard at Yorktown, which amounted to $7,933.33, but it was promptly laid on the table. Most of the money is due to railroad companies for transportation of the troops. Gov. Blackburn says he will pay the debt himself if the State does not.

The committee on ways and means in congress have determined that the work of revising the tariff shall be postponed until next winter. The committee will proceed at once to revise and cut down internal taxes, repealing minor taxes and reducing those on tobacco, beer and spirits. The protectionist policy is so to reduce internal taxes as to make it practically impossible to reduce customs duties.

We can conduct no controversy with the BULLETIN, for they were too cowardly to send us a copy of their paper containing the assault upon our reporter, the first time they have failed to do so since they have been on our exchange list, and we only learned of its dishonorable practice through friends of the Courier in Maysville.—Vanceburg Courier.

The above is a clean and clear-cut falsehood. The weekly BULLETIN, which the Courier receives as an exchange, and which contained the article referred to, was not printed until last night. A copy was sent to the Courier, marked, which, by this time, it has probably received. The editor of the Courier is assured that whatever matter the editor of the BULLETIN has the courage to print he also has the courage to lay before all of its readers and especially those to whom such matter refers.

Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a dram-shop whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head, tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest blessings.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

A Sure Cure Found at Last—No One
Need Suffer!

A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams, (an Indian remedy,) called Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of twenty-five or thirty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electricities do more harm than good. Williams' Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. Williams' Pile Ointment: I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave me such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment.

Skin Diseases Cured

By DR. FRAZIER'S MAGIC OINTMENT. Cures as if by magic, pimples, black head or grubs, blotches and eruptions on the face, leaving the skin clear, healthy and beautiful. Also cures itch, barber's itch, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm, scald head, chapped hands, sore nipples, sore lips, old obstinate ulcers and sores, &c.

SKIN DISEASE.

F. Drake, Esq., Cleveland, O., suffered beyond all description from a skin disease which appeared on his hands, head and face, and nearly destroyed his eyes. The most careful doctoring failed to help him, and after all had failed he used Dr. Frazier's Magic Ointment and was cured by a few applications.

The first and positive cure for skin diseases ever discovered.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, fifty cents.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

THURSDAY EVENING, FEB. 8, 1882.

BEFORE the Spring is fairly in,
Our hills her sunshine gilding,
The people may expect to see
A score of houses building,
Now this is true, as sure as fate,
And not mere idle "blowing,"
For any one, with half an eye,
Can see that we are growing.

THE river is rising.

REMEMBER the matinee Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Reduced prices.

THE DAILY BULLETIN will be issued at noon, on Monday, county court day. There will be one thousand copies circulated.

MR. A. R. GLASCOCK has for sale a farm of seventy acres of good land, conveniently located and in a good neighborhood which he proposes to sell at a bargain. See advertisement.

ONE thousand copies of the the DAILY BULLETIN will be printed and circulated on Monday, county court day. We have still some advertising space for sale. Advertisements for that issue should be handed in by Saturday.

THE Globe Tobacco warehouse, an old and reliable establishment at Cincinnati is represented here by Mr. Perry Jefferson, who will arrange on satisfactory terms for shipments of tobacco. The Globe has done well to secure such a good agent.

Sales of Land.

The following changes in the ownership of land have been recorded at the office of the Clerk of the County Court since our last report:

H. V. Riggan and wife to L. G. Auxier lot of ground in Rectorville; consideration, $1,050.
W. W. Ball to C. P. Cook lot on Fleming pike this city; consideration, $205.
Martin Grimes and wife to William Trouts, house and lot on west side of Market street between Front and Second; consideration, $4,000.

MARSHAL Ed. Fitzgerald yesterday arrested, as a suspicious character, a negro who gave his name as William Jones, and found upon his person, a file, a screw-driver, a chisel and forty-three keys. Among the latter were the keys stolen from the new residence of Dr. A. H. Wall several months ago. The negro claimed to have bought the keys at Cincinnati, but refused to make any further explanation concerning them. He is now in jail.

THE reporter only has rumor for the belief that Power is a bully and dead beat.—Vanceburg Courier.

Mr. Charles T. Power, of this city is the person referred to in the above paragraph. He is the son of the late Hugh Power; a nephew of Captain James Power of Aberdeen, and of Mr. Newton Cooper, and is a member of the firm of Hugh Power & Sons, one of the leading business firms of Maysville. He is not a "dead-beat" nor, is he a "bully," but on the contrary has the reputation of being a quiet and respectable citizen.

THE Washington Life Insurance Company of New York, has appointed M. F. Marsh, of this city, their agent in this section of the county. The Washington is one of the most reliable companies in existence. Its assets amount to the round sum of $6,000,000. It issues on the non-forfeitable dividend system, by which the policy is kept in force for years, even though the premiums had not been paid when due. It has always been prompt in paying every cent of the dividends declared in favor of its policy-holders. Mr. Marsh will take pleasure in waiting on any one who desires a policy.

ARRIVAL OF THE TROOPS AT LEXINGTON.

Enthusiastic Reception by the Citizens—Banquet at the Phoenix Hotel

Special to the DAILY BULLETIN.

LEXINGTON, Ky., February 9, 1882.—The Lexington Guards and the McCreary Guards arrived here last night at half-past six o'clock, having in charge the Ashland murderers. An immense crowd of people assembled to welcome them home. The streets were literally jammed with persons eager to get a glimpse of the fiends. They were taken at once to the jail where they will be confined until the time set for their execution, when they will be returned to Catlettsburg. After disposing of the prisoners the Guards were escorted by the Lexington band to the Phoenix Hotel where an excellent repast was furnished them by the citizens. The McCreary Guards left for Frankfort this morning at seven o'clock.

Sullivan-Ryan.

NEW ORLEANS, La., February 9, 1882.—Ryan came over to town last night not much the worse for wear. He dined with Sullivan and both drank wine until three o'clock this morning. Ryan's only damage was his upper lip cut. At noon he was preparing to go on the streets as soon as the rain stopped.

NEW YORK, February 9.—No prize fight in recent years awakened such keen interest as did the contest which took place in Mississippi. It is estimated that in this city $200,000 changed hands on the result. The betting on the whole was even. Crowds gathered around the afternoon newspaper offices and gazed at the bulletin boards and a number of sporting men assembled at the office of Ryan's backers. The result of the fight was not known there till three o'clock. Most of them had money wagered on the assault, and as Ryan was the favorite, a feeling of dejection fell when a despatch announced the defeat of Ryan.

Guiteau.

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 9, 1882.—Guiteau is now out of the hands of the officers of the court where he was tried, and is under the sole charge of General Crocker, warden of the district jail. The warden said this morning that he did not think it was safe or proper to admit any more visitors to see the prisoner. He has detailed the usual extra guard that is placed over every condemned prisoner, and will maintain it rigidly until the day of execution.

No person whatever will be allowed to go between this guard and Guiteau except the cook of the jail, charged with serving his meals. He is to have only the ordinary jail fare. The cook has special instructions not to allow the prisoner's food out of his sight for a moment, until it is given to Guiteau. The latter will not be allowed knife and fork. He has for some time been confined in a very small cell, to which he was removed after Mason made the attack upon his life; but the ventilation is not good.

A. R. GLASCOCK & Co., are now displaying an unusually handsome and cheap line of Hamburg edgings, which the ladies we are sure, will be pleased to see. They are invited to call and look at the stock. The firm will take pleasure in exhibiting it.

MR. FRANK E. DAGGY, who represents Charles E. Smith, successor to Wilson Brothers, of Cincinnati, the well known and popular manufacturers of men's furnishing goods and shirts, is in the city at the Central Hotel, with a full line of samples. He will be pleased to have all who wish anything in his line give him a call. He will be here for three days.

The State Guards at Catlettsburg.

The following resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the town of Catlettsburg, Ky., held on the 7th inst, and, we are reliably assured were warmly endorsed by the citizens of the town and county alike. These resolutions and the remarks made by Judge Brown from the bench, at the close of the trials effectually dispose of the charges made by the Vanceburg Courier of misconduct on the part of the troops. We append also an editorial article on the subject from the Catlettsburg Democrat:

CATLETTSBURG, Ky., February 7, 1882. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the town of Catlettsburg, Ky., on the 7th day of February 1882, M. B. Goble, Chairman, presiding:

WHEREAS, By an order of Luke P. Blackburn, Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky certain companies of the State Guards—McCreary Guards, Capt. Price, Mason County Guards, Capt. Respass; Lexington Guards, Capt. Morton, have been stationed in this town for four weeks for the maintenance of law and order, and

WHEREAS, A certain newspaper has seen fit to publish to the world what we know to be false and slanderous charges against said company of guards.

Resolved, That the good soldiery conduct and gentlemanly bearing of the officers and men composing the Third Battalion of State Guards has been such in our midst as to merit our hearty congratulations and sincere respect and approval.

Resolved, That their courtesy and uniform respect and kindness to our people and visiting strangers in our midst has been remarked and is commendably commented on and complimented by our whole people.

Resolved, That in the name of the citizens of our little city we tender them our heartfelt wishes for their happiness and welfare in the future, and denounce the false and slanderous reports as to their demerits.

Resolved, That a copy of the above resolutions be sent to the Kentucky Democrat, Lexington Press, Frankfort Yeoman, and Maysville papers, with a request that they publish the same.

From the Catlettsburg Democrat.

The Third Battalion Kentucky State Guards who have been on duty for the past month left last night for their homes. Their gentlemanly bearing and soldierly conduct have been such as to command the admiration of our citizens whose best wishes will follow the brave boys wherever duty calls them as citizens or soldiers through the journey of life.

J M Maxwell, Indianapolis

An article having appeared in the last issue of the Maysville Republican, purporting to have been copied from the Greenup (Ky.) Gazette, referring to the arrest of one Taylor Riley, for taking another man's pocketbook, Mr. J. Taylor Riley, of the Mason County Guards, has requested us to publish the following:

MAYSVILLE, KY., February 8, 1882.

HEADQUARTERS THIRD BAT. K. S. G.

We, the undersigned, members of the various companies composing the Third Battalion K. S. G., take this method of refuting the paragraph published by the Greenup Independent and copied therefrom by the Maysville Republican, to the effect that Taylor Riley (a member of the Third Battalion aforesaid) did find and appropriate to his own use without having first advertised the same, as required by law, a purse in Greenup, Ky. We know of our personal knowledge that Taylor Riley was not in the town of Greenup, Ky., while on the recent trip to Catlettsburg, Ky., on duty as a member of the Mason County Guards, and as far as we know has never been in the town aforesaid.

Signed, THIRD BATTALION K. S. G.

Doubting.

Cherish your doubts. Be kind to them. Do not smother them out with conventionality. "Your doubts are the brightest things about you." All truth was once a doubt in some one's mind. Every reformation has been fathomed by a doubt. Every improvement in society, government or religion was born of a doubt. The progressive philosophers have looked on the old system with doubt, and behold, new and better systems have been born to the world. Every invention has come to light because some one doubted the old and believed in the new. Socrates, Plato, Kant, Bacon, Newton, Darwin and Spencer were men who questioned the present, and so lifted up the future. Truth says: "The belief instilled into all of us when we were exceedingly young was that doubters would go to hell, sure. That is to say, if a very bad boy should be-think him that some things taught to him were strangely improbable, and should really give his growing mind the free rein of examination and doubt, when he grew up to be a man, he would be damned. Millions of us were taught at school that to doubt now was to be damned hereafter; to believe now, to be beautified hereafter. There was no middle course. But, suppose the theory that doubters had no business in the domain of thought had been applied to secular as well as to sacred things? Where would be Galileo, Newton, Edison, Columbus, and Christ, himself, according to the gospels? Never check your doubt; examine, investigate, reason, prove—if possible. That is the province of manhood; no harm can come of it." It may sound strangely, but it is true, that the greatest doubter is the greatest believer; but his belief is in the future. He recognizes the good of to-day, but he questions if the best has yet been realized; and so out of this doubt he builds for the coming day. Do not quench your doubts. They contain the seeds of your progress in every elevated field. Your doubts are your redeemer.—Indianapolis Herald.

Vases.

A Chinese vase, it is contended, is an article of furniture, whereas a Greek vase is a specimen of art. The latter belongs naturally to a museum, where it may inspire the student of painting and sculpture; the former is found, without surprise, in the boudoir of a lady or the dining-room of an opulent banker. And yet the Greeks decorated their houses with vases long before they relegated them to the uses of their tombs, as the Romans also did. They painted them instead of pictures on their walls; they contrived a harmony between their shapes and those of the buildings they were intended to ornament; they gave them plinth and base, frieze and cornice and each was a charm and study in itself. But could there be conceived a collection more monotonous and exhausting to the mind's interest than one composed exclusively of Chinese jars, as any one will testify who has ever visited the vaults of the Japanese Palace of Dresden, where the whole is only redeemed from immediate dullness by a scholarly system of classification, chronological and illustrative of the different types. On the other hand, a Chinese vase standing alone, is an object of exceedingly little attraction in itself. It is a picture which wants to be set in a frame, to be associated with a variety of tones, to be reflected by mirrors, to be draped about by handsome curtains, and so forth.

If all this be true—and the argument is a French one—your Chinese vase can scarcely be said to be worth anything in itself. It is only partially true, however. No doubt the Chinese value their ware instinctively on account of certain qualities which, by Western connoisseurs, are only prized at second-hand—the "crackling," for instance; but it is the same with their gigantic flowers, dragons and chimeras—objects such as to which the Greeks never gave expression or form.

Some deliver after the curious has unearthed the information that Adam's murderous offspring had auburn hair. If this be true, to mother Eve is due the honor of making the first gold-headed Cain presentation on record.—Detroit Free Press.

BATCHELDER'S

Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensible to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candied, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.
For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.
The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.

PRICES IN CHICAGO.

Shipper's No. 1, 30 doz. Case with Fillers complete 65 Cents.
Farmer's No. 1, 18 doz. Case with Fillers complete 55 Cents.
Cardboard Fillers for refilling 20 Cents.
15 per cent. discount on lots of 100 cases.
Batchelder's Egg Tester, 1 string 6 doz. at once, saves to buyers many times its cost each season. Price $3.00.

By special arrangements made by the manufacturers of this case most Railroads will receive them as fourth class freight.
The 18 dozen case made especially for Farmers' use, sent to any address by express, with out nailing, with full directions for setting up, on receipt of 50 cents. Every Farmer and consumer should have one of these cases, it will save its cost every month. Agents wanted in every county. Address,
